

Who can have a Facebook account?

You cannot use Facebook if you are under 13 or a convicted sex offender.
 You can only have one personal account. The personal and contact information must be accurate and up-to-date.
 You cannot claim to be another person, create an account for a fake organization, or create multiple accounts.
 You cannot create an account for anyone else or transfer your account to anyone without permission.
 You must use a Facebook Page for mainly money-making purposes, not your personal timeline.
 You cannot do anything that may risk the security of your account, such as sharing your password or letting other people access your account.
 Facebook has the right to remove your username.
 If Facebook disables your account, you must get permission to create another one.

Does Facebook ban or remove content?

Facebook removes content when there is a risk of physical harm or a direct threat to public safety.
 Groups linked to terrorism or violent criminal activity are not allowed.
 Facebook also forbids actions that could result in financial harm to others, including theft and vandalism.
 Facebook removes any encouragement of self-mutilation, eating disorders or hard drug abuse. Facebook also provides assistance for users in distress.

Does Facebook ban bullying, hate, porn or inappropriate graphics?

Facebook users may not bully or harass,
 attack others based on race, ethnicity, national origin, religion, sex, gender, sexual orientation, disability, or medical condition,
 Share graphic content for sadistic pleasure,
 Share pornographic content and any explicitly sexual contact involving children and teens,
 Display nudity, excepting for some artistic and personal uses,
 Publish personal information about others without their consent.

Does Facebook ban copyright violations?

Facebook users must respect copyrights, trademarks and other legal rights.

Does Facebook protect users' privacy?

Facebook asks users not to contact other users for commercial purposes without their consent.

What can I do if I don't want to be tagged?

Anyone can tag you in anything. If you do not want someone to tag you, contact them personally or block them.
 You can choose whether a story you have been tagged in appears on your timeline. If you are tagged, you and your friends will be able to see it and it will appear on News Feed or in Search. You can also remove a tagged story from your timeline.

What if someone is offended, slandered, or dissed on Facebook?

Facebook is not responsible for the conduct of any user, offensive, inappropriate, illegal or objectionable content or information.
 If a lawsuit is brought against Facebook related to your actions, content or information, you will repay Facebook for all expenses.
 Anyone can add a link to a story. If a person links to another person's timeline, they will only see what they are allowed to see.

Designed by: Karah Fountain
 Wexford Collegiate School for the Arts

The Association for Media Literacy (www.aml.ca) makes no representation as to the currency of this translation nor its fitness for use. The translation is not updated concurrently with the EULA it purports to explain and is not regularly maintained.

This translation is intended for use by educators and is not meant to be relied upon for currency or accuracy, nor is it to be considered legal advice under any circumstances.

In the event that you have questions about this EULA as it pertains to your individual circumstances, we recommend you seek legal advice.

