

Is there a way to stop my search history being tracked both by Google and my own computer?

Incognito mode will erase cookies upon closing the browser window. Google will not store browsing history, take snapshots of pages or keep a record of your downloads. Downloaded files and bookmarks will be kept. Going incognito does not hide your browsing from an administrator or ISP.

Who owns my content?
You do.

How can I stop Chrome from installing cookies?

Choose 'block sites from setting any data' in Advanced Settings > Content Settings.

What happens to my information if Google merges or is acquired?

It will ensure confidentiality and notify users before any personal information is transferred or becomes subject to a new privacy policy.

What personal information does Chrome require?
None.

What information does Chrome collect and share?

IP address, device info, search queries, passwords and other settings. AutoFill text if you log in and store that data on your account.

How does Google use the information Chrome collects?

To send you targeted ads, customized search results, and spam and malware detection.

chrome™

Does Google share information from its 'location services' feature?

Yes, but will anonymize it.

Does Google share my information with third parties?

Yes, but only to:
Process the information in an aggregate, anonymized way.
Resolve a legal dispute.
Google shares metadata publicly and with its partners.

Does Google share information from its 'location services' feature?

Yes, but will anonymize it.

What is my responsibility?

You are responsible for any content—including copyright—you create or send.

How can I manage my privacy?

You can:
review and update your Google activity controls.
review and control what information is linked to your account.
view and edit which ads Google shows you, including opting out of certain ads.
control who sees your information.
remove information.
opt out of having your Profile name and photo used in ads.

This translation is for educational and informational purposes only.

The Association for Media Literacy makes no representation as to the currency of this translation or its fitness for use. This translation is not updated concurrently with the EULA it purports to explain and is not regularly maintained. The translation is intended for use by educators and is not meant to be relied upon for currency or accuracy, nor is it to be considered legal advice under any circumstances.

In the event that you have questions about the End User License Agreement as it pertains to your individual circumstances, we recommend you seek legal advice.

Nabilah Chowdhury